La Tierra tiene fiebre (La Ciencia Para Todos) (Spanish Edition) Isaac Schifter, Carmen González-Macías

Este es un recorrido por la historia del planeta: cómo fue el clima hace millones de años, hace miles de años, hace cientos de años, y en qué medida ha cambiado el clima desde la Revolución industrial. A lo largo de sus páginas encontraremos datos concretos (cuánto bióxido de carbono, metano, etc., se emiten a la atmósfera; cuáles son los países que más contaminan; cómo afectan los clorofluorocarburos a la capa de ozono) y cuestiones aún en discusión (¿es viable fertilizar los océanos?). Los autores concluyen que, dada la creciente presión que la humanidad ejerce sobre los ecosistemas, es necesario desarrollar y aplicar nuevas tecnologías que mejoren la eficiencia en el uso de los recursos y disminuyan su impacto negativo.
